

Dialogue on “Climate Change and Food Security: Taking Stock after the COP 15”

24 February, 2010 from 9:00-12:45
Château de la Muette, OECD Headquarters, Room C,
Rue André Pascal 2, Paris, France

In Cooperation with the OECD Roundtable on Sustainable Development

AGENDA

The International Food & Agricultural Trade Policy Council (IPC) and the International Centre for Trade and Sustainable Development (ICTSD) are pleased to invite you to participate in a roundtable discussion on “Climate Change and Food Security,” to discuss the climate change and food security issues facing the agricultural sector. Participants will discuss the outcome of the Copenhagen Summit and next steps for the climate change and agriculture agenda, with a focus on technology transfer and research priorities.

8h30 Coffee and Registration

8h50 Opening Remarks by the Organisers

9h00-10h00 “Making Sense of Copenhagen – Next Steps for Agriculture?”

- Hayden Montgomery, New Zealand Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry (confirmed) – The Copenhagen Summit – Outcome for Agriculture
- Nathalie Guesdon, French Ministry of Food, Agriculture and Fisheries (confirmed) – Next Steps for International Climate Change Negotiations and Agriculture
- Ajay Vashee, International Federation of Agricultural Producers (invited) – Keeping A Focus on Farmers

10h00-11h15 “Mitigation and Adaptation Priorities”

- Daniel Martino, CarboSur, Coordinating Author of Agriculture Chapter of AR 4, SBSTA Work Program on Agriculture (confirmed) – Priorities based on today’s knowledge
- Simon Upton, Global Research Alliance on Agricultural Greenhouse Gases (confirmed) – The Global Research Alliance and Research Priorities

11h15-12h30 “Agriculture and Technology Transfer”

- Travis Lybbert, University of California (confirmed) – Essential ingredients for technology transfer in developing countries

12h30-45 Closing Remarks