

OPEN INVITATION FOR THE CAMBRIDGE SCHOLARLY COMMUNITY

The intersections of trade law and law on climate change are a subject of legal and scholarly debate. Recent studies have found that sustainable trade policies can be used to foster sustainable development practices, removing trade barriers set on sustainable goods while creating new employment. In the context of fascinating debates in the UN FCCC Durban COP 17, and important new WTO cases on these issues, LCIL, IDLO, ICTSD and the CISDL are hosting an Academic Workshop on Trade Law for the Low-Carbon Economy: New Means to Promote Trade in Climate-Friendly Goods and Services.

Ricardo Meléndez-Ortiz is co-founder of the International Centre for Trade and Sustainable Development and its Director and CEO since 1996. Educated at Harvard and the U. de los Andes, he has edited and authored a wide range of articles and books, and has been a participant in several initiatives including the U.N. Secretary General Millennium Project Task Force on Trade. He is the publisher of the BRIDGES series of periodicals.

Marie-Claire Cordonier Segger is Head of Economic & Trade Law at the International Development Law Organization (IDLO). She also serves as Director of the CISDL, is an Affiliated Fellow at the LCIL in Cambridge, is International Professor at the University of Chile Faculty of Law, and has authored/edited 14 books & 80 papers on these issues, including a new Implementing Treaties on Sustainable Development CUP Series.

Dr. Joanna Gomula works in the field of WTO law at the LCIL in Cambridge. She is a Visiting Reader at the Centre for Commercial Law Studies, Queen Mary College, University of London. Joanna contributes regularly to the WTO section of the Global Community Yearbook of International Law and Jurisprudence.
